Journalists, Percussionists and Fellows, Oh My!

Want to stay up-to-date with The India Center at UCF? The Center releases a quarterly newsletter that recaps related events, activities and opportunities. The most recent edition spotlights a State Department-sponsored delegation of Indian Journalists, a downtown performance featuring Zakir Hussain and The Masters of Percussion and a peek into The India Center's student fellowship. To join the mailing list to receive the quarterly newsletter, email global@ucf.edu, and for more information about the India Fellowship for the fall or spring semester, click here.

Indian Journalists Visit Central Florida

Journalists from several Indian news organizations participated in an International Visitor Leadership Program (IVLP) visit to the Orlando area in April. The local schedule of activities was organized and facilitated by the World Affairs Council of Central Florida.

Hailing from the Indian states of Telangana and Andhra Pradesh, the journalists spent two weeks in various cities across the United States. They gleaned insights into the broad issue of U.S. foreign policy, as well as specific topics such as international trade, counter-terrorism, climate change and the

Where Are They Now?

Inside the office, we have a saying: "You never leave GP." On a philosophical level, the saying references the practice of learning about and engaging other cultures that stays with GP alums forever. Practically speaking, it means staff and students often find their way back to the office, no matter how much time has passed. In this periodic spotlight, we feature former GP team members and see where their journeys have taken them. In our inaugural post, we catch up with an alumna whose passion for learning, language and travel has only grown since her time with us.

Fedorah Philippeaux served as an intern covering Small Countries in the Caribbean in 2010. At UCF, she was fluent in four languages, and has since picked up three more. In between her studies, Fedorah worked for a presidential campaign and taught English in northern China, among other adventures. After completing her Master's degree in Peace and Conflict Studies at the University of Marburg in Germany this summer, she plans to assume work in negotiation and mediation with the International Chamber of Commerce in Paris. When asked to describe what the GP experience meant to her, she said it continues serves as "an inspiration to keep travelling and learning about the world and its cultures." Travel on, Fedorah!
