New Fellowship Opportunity

We at the Global Perspectives Office (GP), in partnership with the Global Connections Foundation and the UCF Department of Political Science, are pleased to announce a new student opportunity, the European Studies Fellowship. The purpose of this fellowship is to promote the understanding of Europe's vital role in the global arena.

John C. Bersia, GP's director, recently commented on creating this new opportunity. "This fellowship complements a long-standing GP interest in European studies, as well as my own commitment to encouraging discussions and awareness about the subject. Europe's evolving role, especially as it relates to the United States in economic, political and security terms, is of critical importance."

The European Studies Fellowship will be part of a broader European Studies Program at UCF, which includes the European Studies Minor. The fellowship will be offered once a year in the fall semester to an outstanding undergraduate or graduate student from a Central Florida college or university. Visit our website to read more about the fellowship or to apply.

Accepting Applications Now

In addition to the new European Studies Fellowship, GP is offering eight paid fellowship positions and several unpaid internship positions for the upcoming fall semester. These opportunities are available to students from any major, with many available to non-UCF students. In addition to conducting research and providing office assistance, interns and fellows help to facilitate the multiple public events that the office hosts throughout the semester.

Beyond gaining great experience, most students are able to receive course credit, if they seek it. For more information about student opportunities or to apply, please visit our website. The deadline for the fall semester is August 3, 2018.

Welcoming A New Face

We are pleased to introduce the newest member of Team GP, Allison Wolfarth-Solano. She joins us as the new senior program assistant, and will provide support for every aspect of GP's mission. A recent graduate of UCF, Wolfarth-Solano received a B.A. in International and Global Studies with a minor in Intelligence and National Security.

As a former Congress-Bundestag Youth Exchange student ambassador, Wolfarth-Solano is passionate about cultural exchange. She shared, "I am excited to join the team, and for the opportunity to help expand people's global outlook."
